

Thank you

Your contribution means so much.

At the center of clinical trials are people like you—the participants who help move research forward. Clinical trials help us study investigational medicines—medicines that are still being tested—to learn how they work in the body.

Your participation is what drives advances in medical research.

Thank you.

About one year after this trial is completed, you can find an easy-to-understand summary of the results:

- 1 Go to msd.trialssummaries.com by entering the web address or scanning the QR code below with your phone or device's camera.

- 2 Sign up to receive an email when the summary is ready.

 If you prefer a printed copy, ask your trial staff.

We hope this summary will help you understand the trial results.

"The Heart of Discovery"—the image on the front cover—was created alongside patients to reflect their experiences in their healthcare journeys. The artwork celebrates the human and animal side of medicine, showing how science and compassion connect.

Artist: Jasminia Otero

Go to www.merckclinicaltrials.com or scan the QR code below to learn more about clinical trials.

